

Installation Art!

How does the scale of installation art effect how viewers interact with the work?

What social or cultural issues come into question when an artist repurposes materials for their artwork?

How do we read objects differently when there are many present, as apposed to just one?

How can installing a work of art in a public space change it's meaning as apposed to installing it in a gallery?